

Dublin Chamber takes stand against SB350

The Chamber expressed opposition to petroleum reduction mandates required by Senator Kevin de Leon's SB 350, and to urge Assemblywoman, Catharine Baker not to support this legislation. We instead urged her to join Senate colleagues in a thoughtful, responsible examination of programs and policies that can help us achieve greenhouse gas emission goals without unnecessarily targeting the transportation fuels businesses, and increasing energy costs for businesses and consumers.

California Democrats dropped this major component of their ambitious climate change legislation, after a group of moderate Democratic holdouts threatened to spell the end for the bill.

Senate bill SB 350 which originally aimed for a 50 percent reduction in petroleum use in cars and trucks, a 50 percent increase in energy efficiency in buildings, and a goal of 50 percent of state utilities' power coming from renewable energy, all by 2030. Lawmakers scrapped the goal of a 50 percent reduction in petroleum use in cars and trucks. California Senate President Pro Tem Kevin de León, who authored the legislation, said that a major lobbying campaign by the oil industry was largely to blame for the doubt that had emerged over the bill. Taking out the petroleum measure was meant to be a concession to these moderate Democrats — and it seems to have worked. "We are the verge of accomplishing something truly historic," Senate leader Kevin De Leon (D-Los Angeles) said during a lengthy speech before the Senate voted 26-14 to give final approval to his bill, SB 350 and now awaits

American Swim Academy

Today, that principle remains the backbone of the Company, which has expanded to four Bay Area locations - Fremont, Newark, Livermore and Dublin. The schools service over 12,000 swimmers per week with classes available for all ages ranging from 4 months to adult. All four locations offer year round indoor instruction, 7 days a week in pools heated to 92 degrees designed specifically for instruction.

The American Swim Academy along with the American Safety Academy endorse the following safety tips in and out of the water:

- Teach your child how to swim at an early age. Swim lessons as early as four months of age
- Avoid inflatable swimming aids such as "floaties." They are not a substitute for approved life vests and can give children a false sense of security.
- Be "water aware." Always supervise children in and around the pool or body of water. Keep close attention to children in the water—at all times. If you are in a group, appoint a designated water watcher, taking turns with other adults.
- Whenever infants or toddlers are in or around water, an adult should be within arm's length, providing "touch supervision."
- Keep a telephone nearby in case of an emergency.
- All parents, grandparents and caregivers should learn and know infant and child CPR. Immediately providing effective CPR can double a victim's chance of survival. CPR is not just for heart attacks. Approximately 7 million adults and children suffer from disabling injuries that occur in their homes and backyards each year, resulting from accidents, which may require CPR. Swimming and safety go hand in hand and American Swim Academy believes that anyone can learn to swim -- it's never too late or too early. Swimming is a healthy activity that can be continued for a lifetime so start early and swim often.
